Evening Telegram.

VOL. VI. NO. 87. GREENSBORO, N. C., MONDAY MAY 14, 1900. Price Five Cents

WILL WED THIS EVENING.

The Delayed Nuptials of Mr. Wilson and Miss Wood.

Announcement was made last week that Miss Elsie A. Wood, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Wood, of this city, and Mr. Ernest W. Wilson, of Baldwin, Mass., would be married Wednesday evening, May the 9th. However, the groom being conspicuous by his absence the marriage didn't take place. It was not a desire to flee from "ills he knew not of" that caused this, as he explained upon his arrival the following morning. Mr. Wilson is employed in the railroad secret service and a very important case delayed him.

Mrs. Wood not relying entirely upon the young man's veracity, decided to investigate. The result was evidently satisfactorily, for the marriage will take place this evening, at 8:30 at the home of the bride's mother. All's well that ends well.

The couple will leave this evening for Wilmington, Del., to visit the father of the groom.

MACHINERY IN OPERATION.

Proximity Mills Again Running—Union Men Still Out.

The machinery in the Proximity Cotton Mills was started up this morning after a week's suspension. When the whistle blew the operatives who were discharged last Monday morning assembled in front of the office to learn the terms upon which they could go back to work. When they were informed by the superintendent that the company would take back all who would renounce the union, the men departed. It is said that only four union men went to work.

Later the union men assembled for a few minutes on the hillside, where they were addressed by one of the union organizers. He advised them to stand firm, assuring them they would receive all the aid necessary.

It is felt that affairs may take an interesting turn before the end of the week.

A WRECK IN A TUNNEL.

Through the Negleet of a Towerman Two Sections of a Train Dash Into Each Other.

Philadelphia, May 12.—Through the negligence of a towerman, who lay asleep at his post, a disastrous and fatal wreck occurred here last midnight, in a tunnel on the Baltimore and Ohio. An engineer and a fireman were killed and five unknown tramps are supposed to be dead in the wreck. The property loss is estimated at $185,000. The man who is responsible for the accident, Frank Lantell, surrendered himself late this afternoon to a superintendent in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio. He is now under arrest. The bodies of those of the tramps who are buried beneath the wreckage cannot be recovered until the fire, which followed the collision is extinguished. About thirty firemen of the city fire department were either burned or overcome by smoke while fighting the flames. None of them, however, was seriously injured.

Graded School Commencement.

The Graduating exercises of the Greensboro Graded schools will be held on Monday and Tuesday, May 21st and 22nd. A pleasant occasion is looked forward to.

The annual address will be delivered Monday night, the 21st, by Dr. George T. Winston, of Raleigh, president of the College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. His subject will be "Opportunities for Boys in North Carolina."

Ninth District Not Represented.

Asheville Citizen.

The Citizen regrets to announce tha the Ninth district of North Carolina is no longer represented in the National House of Representatives.

Rev. D. J. Brimm, of Columbia S. C., has resigned his chair in the Columbian Presbyterian Theological Seminary. His action was voluntary, the reason assigned being that he differs from the majority of the Church, in that he believes in the faith cure. He was professor of Greek literature.

The story that the Czar has recently granted a commission to Ernest Ferah Hooley is indignantly denied by the Czar's representatives.

CRUSHED BY AN ELEVATOR.

A Charlotte Man Tries to Jump and is Caught in a Door Facing and Falls twenty-five Feet.

Charlotte Observer.

In attempting to jump from an elevator in the store of E. M. Andrews' Furniture and Music Company, last night, Mr. Will F. Davidson, a molder at the Liddell foundry, was critically, if not fatally, injured.

He had gone into the store to make a purchase. While being taken, in the elevator, to the third floor to examine furniture, the top of the elevator came against the thin screen door on the second floor, which had swung to the inside and over the elevator shaft. The force of the elevator broke the door and threw it back from the shafting. Davidson, not realizing the nature of the accident, became frightened and sprang from the elevator. As he jumped he was seized and crushed between the floor of the rapidly moving elevator and the facing of the broken door. The impetus of the elevator twisted his body downwards and he fell 25 feet to the bottom of the shaft.

Davidson lay motionless, though not unconscious. Physicians were summoned, and after an examination they said that his elbow, shoulder and three ribs had been broken and that he was seriously injured internally. He suffered very much.

After morphine had been given the injured man was taken to St. Peter's Hospital, where his wife came to nurse him. At a late hour last night his physicians stated that he was in an extremely critical condition.

A SOLDIER'S APPETITE.

'Squire Pearce's Hearty Meal at Bristow Station--Judge Gilmer at the Battle.

While in a reminiscent mood a few days ago 'Squire Pearce was reminded of several incidents connected with army life in the '60's. As illustrating some of the hardships of war, he mentioned the worn-out and famished condition of the troops just prior to the battle of Bristowe Station. They were living then as best they could, and when a soldier returned from a successful foraging expedition he was the object of the envy of all his fellows. By some hook or crook 'Squire Pearce had managed to secure a good supply of soda biscuits and salty bacon—a rare treat indeed. He filled his haversack with the rations, and early in the day ate twenty-one of the biscuits and three pounds of the bacon, after which he forded Bull Run twice and was whipped by the enemy. Notwithstanding the very hearty meal, followed by heavy field duty, 'Squire Pearce says he experienced no ill effects, but was ready the next day for another round of biscuits and bacon.

In the hard-fought battle of Bristow Station the regiment of which the late Judge John A. Gilmer was colonel was actively engaged, Col Gilmer being among the wounded. He came to the fight in an ambulance, either being sick or suffering from a previous wound. So great was his desire to be with his men that he refused to remain in the background, but left the ambulance and took charge of his command.

Burglars in Town.

About 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning burglars attempted to break into the residence of Mr. Will C. Smith, on Bellemeade avenue. They had raised a window and were crawling into the room, when the noise of an overturned chair awakened Mrs. Smith, who ran upstairs and gave an alarm. Her cries brought Chief of Police Scott, who resides on the same street, but when he arrived the burglars had flown.

Mr. Smith travels in the interest of a school book concern and was away from home, the burglars probably being aware of the fact.

There was a light fall of snow at Port Jervis, N. Y., on Friday morning. That was the coldest day in the month of May for twenty years at Manchester, N. H. Snow fell twice and the mercury dropped to 23 degrees above zero.

Frank Steed was jailed recently in Indianapolis, charged with assault. He hypnotised the turnkey and walked out of the prison.

SUNDAY'S PULPIT DISCOURSES

A NUMBER OF INTERESTING ONES.

Two on Sabbath Observances—Dr. Smith Discusses the Moral Fruits of Calvanism. Mr. Pruden Speaks in Behalf of St. Mary's.

Yesterday morning Pastor Johnson, of West Washington, preached on "Sabbath observance." He said there are two extremes in the Christian world about the observance of the Sabbath. One class are Puritanical in their ideas and would make man the object plan of the Sabbath. Another class going to the opposite extreme and hold very lax views as to Sabbath observance. With this class it is a day of idleness and festivity. Between these two extremes there is a happy mein. The Lord tells us that the Sabbath was made for man, for his highest good. It is intended for man's physical good. A man who is confined in an office all the week enjoys the freedom from imprisonment on the Sabbath. After attending service at his church, it is no desecration of the day to walk out and breathe the fresh air and hear the music of the birds and commune through nature and nature's God. I do not think it is a desecration of the Day for those who are worn out physically, to sleep a little later Sunday morning, that they may be better prepared by this physical rest, for the duties of the day. Such an one must be very careful, however, not to indulge himself so long that he will miss the services of his church, for the Sabbath was intended more than anything else for man's spiritual good. The Sabbath is called the day of rest, and the Lord's day. There is no rest so sweet and refreshing as that which comes by communion with God. The tendency is unquestionably toward Sabbath desecration. This evil cannot be remedied by legislation. The state has no right to enforce the observance of the Sabbath as a religious institution. The churches should throw all their moral force against violation of the Sabbath. Only works of necessity should be performed on the Sabbath. Keep ever in mind the word of our Lord, the Sabbath was made for man's highest good, physical, intellectual, spiritual.

Last night a very sweet solo was rendered by Miss Nannie Weaver.

GRACE M. P. CHURCH.

Rev. H. J. Hartsell, who will serve the church during the summer as acting pastor, preached yesterday morning from the text, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." The sermon was good---carefully prepared and earnestly delivered.

A large congregation was present, and the impression is that the acting pastor will serve the church most acceptably during the summer.

A reception will be given to Mr. Hartsell on Tuesday evening in the church basement, the object of which is to give pastor and people an opportunity to become acquainted with each other. All the members of the congregation and all interested friends are cordially invited to be present.

CALVINISM THE THEME.

A large congregation, filling the aisles, assembled in the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Dr. Smith's subject was "The Moral Fruits of Calvinism." He began by saying that his regular hearers would cheerfully testify that he was not in the habit of preaching distinctively denominational sermons. Since, however, the great and Scriptural system of doctrine known as Calvinism had been made the object of public attack, it became his duty to defend it. He would test the truth of Calvinism by applying to it a principle, endorsed, by the common sense of mankind and authority of Christ, viz.: "The tree is known by its fruits." As a character maker, he said, Calvinism stands preeminent among all religious systems of the world. The truth of this proposition, he said, was made antecedently probable by the doctrinal character and contents of Cavalism—the unexampled stress it lays upon the supreme sovereignty, authority and glory of God; upon the enormity and deadly effects of human sin; upon the gracious freeness, fullness, and certainty of the divine salvation. It appeals not primarily to the feelings, but to the conscience. It aims at the conscience through the intellect. It develops to the utmost the sense of duty. The prominence of Calvinism as a character maker, he said, was provided by history and impartial testimony. Its power to inspire moral heroism and purity is seen in the unparalleled number of its martyrs, in the prominent morality of the Calvinists of history, the Puritans, Huguenots, Dutch Protestants, Scotch, etc. In Scotland, where there is most Calvinism, there is least crime, and the average morality and intelligence is higher than in any other country in the world. The speaker's statements were substantiated by the testimony of Froude, Green, Taine, Motley, Bancroft, Stanley, Lowell and others.

At night Dr. Smith preached to another large congregation on "America's Debt to Calvanism."

THE PROGRESS OF METHODISM.

At West Market Street Methodist church yesterday morning Dr. Rowe preached on the growth and progress of Methodism. The speaker handled his subject well, and the figures he gave were interesting.

The offertory was well rendered by Miss Lola Carraway and Dr. Charles L. Scott.

The evening service was conducted by the Epworth League, it being the first of a series on the Church literature. The subject was "Our Hymn Book." The readings by Messrs. L. W. Crawford Jr., and Floyd Ross and Miss Mary Trotter were very interesting. A male quintette, composed of Messrs. Wheeler, Younts, Wills, Boyles and Alderman, together with a solo by Miss Lily Poole and a duet by Misses Mozelle Andrews and Helen Wheeler, added much to the exercises.

MR. PRUDEN AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. Mr. Pruden, of Raleigh, chaplain of St. Mary's School, preached at St. Andrew's Episcopal church yesterday morning and evening. Before the morning sermon Mr. Pruden made a short talk in behalf of St. Mary's School, which has recently become the property of the Episcopal church. He is making a tour of North and South Carolina in the interest of the school.

AT CENTENARY.

Rev. T. E. Wagg, the pastor, preached a strong sermon on "Sabbath Observance" at Centeneary Methodist church yesterday morning. This subject was chosen partially in response to a request of the W. C. T. U.

Next Sunday evening the W. C. T. U. will hold a mass meeting in this church, at which time the question of a more faithful observance of the Sabbath will be discussed.

As to Sweeping the Streets.

There are many people in Greensboro who think the town has grown large enough to have business streets, especially South Elm, swept once in every twenty-four hours. It is in response to this feeling that the new board of aldermen has instructed the street committee to investigate the matter of sweeping South Elm once a day. A report is to be made at the next meeting of the board, when some action will probably be taken.

As it is both annoying and inconvenient to have the streets swept during business hours, the work will probably be done either late at night or early in the morning.

Sent to Cuba.

Mr. Hardy Gregory, along with other postoffice inspectors and secret service men, has been sent to Cuba to investigate the postal frauds on that island and to hunt down and capture the guilty parties. Several days ago news of a shortage in Cuban postal affairs leaked out, and it now develops that the shortage amounts to $100,000.

If Mr. Gregory is as successful as he has been in handling other cases he will succed in apprehending the guilty officials.

Ex-President Harrison is taking a lively interest in golf.

PREPARING FOR THE FUNERAL.

Republican Campaign to Open in Winston Tomorrow.

The Republican State campaign will be opened in Winston tomorrow with speeches by Senator Pritchard and the candidate for governor, Judge Adams. E. Spencer Blackburn, assistant district attorney and candidate for the Congressional nomination in the Eighth district, and J. R. McRary, referee in bankruptcy for this district, and probably other lesser lights, will also be on hand and make short speeches.

As this is to be the formal opening of the campaign, efforts will be made to have a very enthusiastic meeting. It is expected by the manager that the presence of both Senator Pritchard and the gubernatorial nominee will have the effect of drawing a large crowd. Winston is the home town of Chairman Holton, and he is particularly anxious that the occasion be one of unbounded enthusiasm among his party men.

A number of Greensboro Republicans will go up to swell the crowd and help start the ball rolling.

A PURSE OF HUMAN SKIN.

The Strange Use Made of Negro Hide in Iowa.

A prosperous business man from an Iowa town who spent several days in Greensboro recently carried a unique curiosity in the shape of a purse made of skin taken from the body of a negro. Taking the purse from his pocket, in the presence of two Greensboro gentlemen, considerable interest was manifested as to the material of which this strange looking moneyholder was made. When they were told that it was the hide of an African the surprise of the Greensboro gentlemen was great.

The Iowa man explained that the skin had been taken from a negro, after which it was tanned and cut into small pieces for distribution as souvenirs. Some strange fancy led him to have a purse made from a portion of his share. He promised each of the Greensboro gentlemen a piece of the negro skin, and by last night's mail they received the weird relics. The skin has been properly tanned and is soft and pliable.

So far as is known, these are the only pieces of tanned negro hide in North Carolina. People in the South have been accused of carrying as relics fragments of bones from lynched negroes, but the Iowa man's purse is certainly an innovation.

BEATING BOERS AT ALL POINTS.

Roberts Entered Kroonstadt Saturday and Buller Captured Biggersburg Passes Yesterday--The Whole Orange Free State in British Hands.

Lord Roberts entered Kroonstadt Saturday on his march towards Pretoria. He is now in 160 miles of that place and in 50 miles of the border of the Transvaal. The Free State is completely in British hands and the Boers continue to retreat northward, declining to fight more on Free State soil.

Buller yesterday captured the Biggarsburg passes, winning after a hard fought battle, in which British losses are supposed to be heavy.

By Way of Precaution.

Chicago Post.

Being a wise man, he desired to take no chances.

"Of course you understand," he said by way of preface, "that I have plenty of female relatives."

"Certainly," she answered, somewhat nonplussed.

"I have four sisters already," he went on, "and any number of cousins."

"I realize all that," she returned, "but I fail to see how it interests me."

"Oh, only indirectly," he said. "Before saying what I have to say I merely desire to have it understood that I have my full quota of relatives of that description. Do I make myself clear?"

"I think I grasp your meaning," she answered.

"In that case," he announced, "I will ask you to be my wife."

MR. STAMEY MAKES A STATEMENT.

Improvements in the Telegram---High Point Has a Negro Baptizing---Local and Personal.

correspondence of the Telegram.

High Point, N. C., May 14.—Yesterday the colored Baptists had their annual May baptizing. This time there were only four applicants, but this did not keep the crowd away. From every direction and in most every conceivable way they came to town, and by 12 o'clock a great throng of seething, bustling humanity of the colored persuasion was traversing the streets, raising "dust in general." The ground where the "ceremony" took place was literally covered with people, including the usual quota of white ones, to witness the ceremony. The older and quieter set of their race attended meeting while most of the young negroes, who came to have a good time, spent the day driving over town and making the air dense with dust raised by their vehicles. Three or four of the visitors imbibed too frequently from the reeking red and were escorted by the officers to the guard house, where they were given time to recuperate. The crowd, with these exceptions, seemed to be orderly.

Locke Craige, of Asheville, was here Saturday afternoon.

J. M. McAlister, of Worthville, and S. Bryant, of Randleman, were in town Saturday.

Homer Ragan won the prize in the ocatorical contest of the Websterian Literary Society at Guilford College Friday night. He makes the second High Point boy that has won prizes for speaking at Guilford this year, the other gentleman being J. Emmett Sheppard.

Prof. Geo. H. Crowell preached an excellent sermon at the M. E. church Sunday morning.

Rev. J. R. Scroggs preached the commencement sermon at Trinity High School yesterday morning. Several from here heard the sermon.

J. Eugene Thompson, clerk at Harry-Belk Bros., Greensboro, was here yesterday.

Alex. Wray, of the Southern, was here yesterday.

Several parties from here will attend the Richmond Carnival and Street Fair this week. The rate is cheap enough.

Mr. C. A. Hamner is at home.

It's bad enough for men to get drunk, but when it comes to women—well, it's worse still. Yesterday evening we saw an old negro woman reeling up street so full of liquor that she could scarcely stand on her feet.

In a few days I expect to have your paper delivered at your door immediately after the arrival of the 7:05 p. m. local passenger train. This will be a great convenience to you and will more than offset the small advance in price.

A MAN OF SCHEMES.

THE GRAND PROMOTER EXPLAINS MATTERS TO HIS LANDLADY.

His Little Account Is Under Discussion, and He Shows Her That She Is Flying Along the Road to Wealth. Thus He Dodges a Calamity.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

The grand promoter expected it. For the past week he had observed many signs that his landlady had lost confidence in him and was working up her nerve to present him a bill. His cheerfulness at the dinner table almost bordered on hilarity, and as he left the table he executed a flank movement by saying:

"My dear woman, if it is not asking too much, I wish you would hand me my account this evening. I don't want to occupy your valuable time nor put you to any extra trouble, but it seems to me that we ought to have a settlement without further delay."

He hadn't been in his room two minutes when the landlady followed. She had the bill in her hand and the light of anticipation in her eyes.

"Ah!" said the major as he took the bill from her hand. "Nothing like promptness in business affairs. Let me see. The bill itself is made out in proper form. The chirography is fair. Room and board for ten weeks at $7 per week makes exactly $70, and there is no mistake there. My dear woman, permit me to congratulate you. You have a business head on you. Had you needed this money before you would have asked for it. Not having any need of it and having perfect confidence in my financial integrity, you have held the bill till this date. Exactly ten weeks and $70."

"AND YOU MEAN I OWE YOU $930?"

"Yes, sir, $70," replied the landlady as she moved about uneasily.

"While it is only a trifle," continued the major as he looked the bill over again, "it should be paid and the books balanced—that is, if there is anything coming to you it should be paid at once; if there is anything coming to me I'll give you 30 or 60 days to square up."

"But how can there be anything coming to you?" protested the landlady.

"We can't tell until we have figured. My dear woman, my treasure of a landlady, let me say at the very outset that I am perfectly satisfied with your table, and as for my room kings have had far worse. If you will kindly go over the past in your memory you will admit that I have not made one single kick; satisfied, my dear woman, perfectly satisfied."

"Then the bill is all right?"

"Perfectly all right—couldn't be better. Let me see. When I organized the Universal Hand Organ trust I let you in on the ground floor for $50,000 worth of stock, I believe. That stock ought to have given you dividends of at least $5,000 a year."

"But it didn't, major. The whole thing busted up, you know."

"Ah, I remember. It was not a bust up, but the Hand Organ trust was consolidated with the Great American Antiblizzard syndicate. I haven't the books here, but if my memory serves me right I presented you with $100,000 worth of stock. If your annual income from that stock has reached the sum of $10,000—if you have been enabled to purchase"—

"But I never saw any stock," protested the landlady. "You said something about it one day, but a week later you claimed that you had dropped the scheme for a better thing. You owe for ten weeks."

"Let me see," mused the major—"let me see. Did I drop the Hand Organ and Antiblizzard trust for a surer thing? Ah, it comes back to me! Yes; we let go of it to take up and push to success the International Nursing Bottle monopoly. Object was to control the manufacture and sale of all the nursing bottles in the world. Any mother who refused to buy one of our bottles had to feed her infant from a trough. Each and every one of our bottles was provided with a squirt gun, and when the infant wasn't filling up on milk he was squirting at flies and developing his marksmanship. That monopoly was capitalized at $50,000,000, I believe. You were let in on the ground floor. As my landlady I took you in first of all. My dear woman, if your dividends on that stock"—

"But I haven't had any. That was another of your schemes that busted."

The major looked at her for a moment in doubt and perplexity, but then his face cleared, and, reaching for her hand, he shook it heartily and exclaimed:

"My dear woman, what a business head you have on your shoulders—what a head! It is no wonder that your landlord never has to come twice for his rent and that the fame of your table has spread abroad through the land. Let me assure you that I am not only satisfied with everything up to date, but I mean to continue on with you indefinitely—for years and years."

"But you must pay. I can't run my house unless my boarders pay."

"While perfectly assured that the International Nursing Bottle monopoly would pay 20 per cent dividends," said the major as he walked about, "we decided to drop it for a better thing. You must know the difference between 20 and 40 per cent profit—you surely must."

"Of course I do."

"Then I needn't go into details. You will see at once why we went into the Physical Pick and Ax Handle syndicate. It was the difference between 20 and 40 per cent. That organization was perfected only three days ago, and I have seized the earliest opportunity to talk with you about it. You are to come in on the ground floor. When Major Crofoot gets hold of a good thing, he remembers his friends. Not only have you as my landlady fed and lodged me on the best in the land, but"—

"But you are behind ten weeks," she put in.

"But, my dear woman, you did not stop there. You showed your confidence in my integrity by allowing my indebtedness to accumulate until it has finally reached the figure of $70. Where can such another landlady be found? Who will point me out another such case of financial confidence? But you shall be rewarded. People who repose trust in Major Crofoot cast their bread upon the waters to have it returned 20 times over. You will remember that this is an interview of my own seeking. Had I not sought it you would have let the bill run on for weeks and months yet."

"No, I wouldn't!" exclaimed the woman. "I've been trying to catch you for the last two weeks!"

"But I sought the interview," serenely continued the promoter. "I brought about this meeting in order that we might balance the books. My dear woman, you are a stockholder in the Physical Pick and Ax Handle trust. You are in on the ground floor. I have set aside for you $10,000 worth of stock at 10 per cent of its face value. That's $1,000. You know how it is when a man strikes a blow with pick or ax. He grunts. We make all our handles hollow. They do the grunting and save the man's vitality—makes the labor 10 per cent easier, and every laborer wants to work 11 hours per day. In six months we shall be supplying the world—profit of 10 cents in every handle and 1,000,000,000 used every year."

"But this ten weeks' bill?" she insisted.

"Yes, we now come to the bill. Your ground floor stock comes to $1,000. Take $70 from that, and we have $930 left. In other words, you owe me $930. But take your time, woman—take your time. Take 30, 60 or 90 days if you will. I have confidence in you."

"And you mean I owe you $930?"

"As you see, my dear woman—as you see. Look over the figures for yourself—exactly $930, and you needn't worry about it. Our first call on the stockholders is only for 3 per cent, and if you haven't the money I'll lend it to you. And that's all tonight, I believe."

"But I—I don't understand!"

"But you will after thinking it over. Run along now and think. Plain as day after a little reflection. Don't want to push you out, you know, but really I'm very busy, and you also want to figure it out. Don't worry—and don't worry, and good night to you."

THE AIR WE BREATHE.

An Average of One Cubic Foot Consumed Every Two Minutes.

"Man wants but little here below" is an axiom which applies markedly to the quantity of air which is necessary to support life. It is estimated that when a man is at rest he consumes 500 cubic inches of air every minute, an allowance which at the first glance appears large.

It is, however, absurdly small when we consider that at this rate of consumption it would take a man 5 days and 9½ hours to exhaust the air in a small room 15 feet square and 10 feet high.

Any form of exertion, however, greatly increases the consumption of air. Thus if we saunter at two miles an hour we require just twice as much air as when sitting in our armchair, and at four miles an hour nothing less than 2,300 cubic inches will satisfy us.

Taking an average consumption throughout life of one cubic foot of air every two minutes, we reach some very interesting conclusions. Thus an hour's supply of air could be contained in a trunk 5 feet long, 3 feet wide and 2 feet deep.

In a day we should exhaust a small roomful, 10 feet long, 7 feet wide and 10 feet high.

For a year's supply we should require a reservoir or hall 100 feet square and a shade over 26 feet high, and the supply for a long life of 80 years would be contained in a large hall 1,000 feet long, 500 feet wide and 42 feet high.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The New Haven News says that a Connecticut clergyman on a recent Sunday gave out the following notice: "The regular session of the Donkey club will be held, as usual, at the close of this service. Members will line up just outside the church door, make remarks and stare at the women who pass, as is their custom. Any member known to escort a young woman to a church like a man and sit with her like a gentleman will be promptly expelled from membership."

"I found your medicine a blessing to me and my family."

There are women who feel something like a grudge against the children, who, one after another rob their mother of her beauty and strength. Men do not usually realize how much the mother gives to each child to her own loss. Women accept it as part of the obligation of Nature and pay the debt grudgingly. Yet in Nature's plan every child is a new joy and fresh happiness. It isn't the children that steal the mother's strength. It is the unnatural drains and pains which weaken her.

Every woman who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has found in it the one thing woman has waited for. It stops the drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, makes the baby's advent a pleasure and his life a blessing. No opiates or narcotics are contained in "Favorite Prescription."

"I read what your medicine had done for other people," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, Box 70, Beechwood, Norfolk Co., Mass., "so thought I would try it, and I found that it was a blessing to me and my family. I began in June and took six bottles of your medicine, and three vials of 'Pellets.' I took your medicine a year when I had a ten pound girl. I had the easiest time I ever had with any of my children. I have been very well since. I took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription, three of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and three vials of 'Pellets.' I had no appetite and could not eat much without it distressing me. Before I took the medicine I only weighed 135 pounds, and now I weigh 175."

MONDAY, MAY 14 1900.

THE ECLIPSE OF MAY 28TH.

A great deal of interest is now being taken by others than astronomers in the coming eclipse of the sun, which will occur on Monday two weeks hence, to be visible throughout the southern and eastern portions of the United States. Additional interest is given it in North Carolina from the fact that a section of the State is in the path of the greatest totality and elaborate preparations are being made to take scientific observations at at least four points in the State. There will be a goverment party at Raleigh and one near Southern Pines. At the latter place, also, will be a party from Carleton College, of Northfield, Minnesota, while the Smithsonian Institutions will make observations at Wadesboro, at which place the totality is greater by a few seconds than at any other point. Observation parties will be stationed all over the path in this country, while the European astronomers will view it from Spain and Northern Africa.

The astronomers say that this eclipse will be the most important astronomical event of the century for this section. The path of the total eclipse will extend across Mexico, the Southern States from New Orleans to Norfolk, then over the Atlantic Ocean to Portugal, Spain and Northern Africa to the Red Sea. The path of the shadow will be 48 miles wide at New Orleans, and imperceptibly widening to 55 miles at Norfolk At all places within these limits the sun will be totally eclipsed, while to all places in this country outside the path it will appear as a partial eclipse. Concerning the darkness occasioned by the eclipse one writer says:

The degree of obscuration in total eclipses varies somewhat with the state of the weather and the condition of the atmosphere. During the totality the time has been read from the face of a watch on some occasions without the aid of artificial light, while at other times a lamp has been necessary. The brigher stars can easily be seen, and the whole earth seems to be shrouded in a strange and supernatural gloom. The lower animals often manifest distinct signs of uneasiness and fear, and even intelligent men are impressed with a feeling of awe.

We have all heard our mothers tell of an eclipse which occurred some forty years ago, and which frightened people so much. And whenever this is told, as if to clinch the wonderfulness of the statement, it is always added that "it was so dark that the chickens went to roost."

Concerning the cause of an eclipse, the writer above quoted from says:

If an orange be held up in the sunshine a long tapering shadow will be projected into space opposite the sun. The moon, which is a huge globe suspended in space, likewise has a long conical shadow that is sometimes projected upon the earth whenever the moon comes between us and the sun.

This shadow falling upon the earth producing the eclipse is caused by the opaque body of the moon coming between us and the sun and cutting off a portion or all of its light. The sun is a much larger body than the moon, and hence the moon's shadow tapers out into a long conical point. The length of this shadow varies slightly with the distance of the sun, but its average length is about 232,000 miles. The mean distance of the moon from the earth it 238,000 miles, but owing to the eccentricity of its orbit this distance varies from 221,614 to 252,972. While the average length of the moon's shadow is somewhat less than the average distance of the moon from us, this shadow, as will be seen, is sometimes long enough to reach the earth. Should the shadow then fall upon the earth an observer within the shadow on the service of the earth would have the sun completely obscured from view and therefore totally eclipsed. Should the length of the shadow not be sufficient to reach the earth the moon would not appear large enough to cover up the sun, but a bright ring of the sun's unobscured disc would remain visible. This is known as an annual eclipse.

The shadow so far considered is called the umbra or true shadow within which the sun is totally obscured. The greatest possible diameter of this shadow on the earth is 167 miles, and the longest possible duration of a total eclipse for any place on the earth is 7 minutes 58 seconds, conditions that are rarely, if ever really attained. Surrounding the umbra like an inverted cone is another shadow called the penumbra, within which the sun is only partially obscured. The cross sectional diameter of this penumbra at the distanee of the earth is about 4,400 miles. The arrival of this penumbra at any place on the earth marks the beginning and its departure the end of the eclipse.

North Carolina, in this, as in most things, is right in the swim, and our folks may expect to get fully acquainted with the umbra and penumbra too.

INVESTIGATING CUBAN FRAUDS.

It seems that the government has aroused itself to a realization of the fact that something must be done in Cuba in the way of investigating the wholesale frauds in the postal department. General Wood is proceeding with an investigation on the island, and the work at Washington has resulted in the suspension of two or three officers in Cuba, and the appointment of special officers for investigation, who were to sail today. So far, it seems, only one man, Neely, has been found to be guilty, the other suspensions being for the purpose of clearing the way for a complete investigation, by which it is expected that other employees will be found guilty. General Wood, who is actively at the work, has been cabled full authority to suspend officers whenever he finds evidence attaching any one else with the frauds. If he continues vigorously in this line, something is sure to drop, for it is hardly possible that one man alone could be at the work. It is declared, says an Associated Press dispatch, to be the purpose of the administration to leave nothing undone to ascertain the true situation in Cuba and to bring to speedy justice. every person who may be found to have been connected, in any way whatever, with frauds upon the postal revenues.

It is indeed to be hoped that the administration will carry out their purpose and not only sift the thing to the bottom, but punish the guilty parties. The stealing of $100,000 by officials at home would be quite an insignificant matter compared with stealing that amount in Cuba or any other of our possessions. We could put up with it here, and let it pass as merely one of the sensations of the day, but there it is disastrous. We have just gone over to take care of those people and one steal like this will offset almost a decade of good work and honest methods in their eyes. This is true simply because the thousand and one schemes of robbery of Spanish officials goaded the people to desperation, and when the Americans took the place of Spaniards, Cubans naturally looked for more robbery and spoliation, as the only result of the presence of foreign officers.

Let the robbers be apprehended and be made an example of. No punishment can be too severe.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

WORKED IT BOTH WAYS.

A Neat Swindling Scheme That Fleeced Bucket Shop Patrons.

"If the real inside workings of the average bucket shop were laid bare," said a telegraph operator who has had much experience in such establishments, "the revelation would open the eyes of the young donkeys who imagine they can beat the game. Just to illustrate the point I'll tell you a little story.

"Some time ago there were two rival bucket shops in a certain southern city, supposed to be run by northern operators. Business was a little slow, and it was evident that the speculative element was inclined to be suspicious of both establishments. One day the manager of one of the concerns hunted up a young fellow who had more money than brains and, handing him $50, asked him, as a special favor, to go over to the other house and make such and such a play. 'It's a private speculation of my own,' he said, 'and I have a straight tip, but I can't very well place the money myself on account of my connection with —— & Co. If I did they'd get suspicious right away.'

"The young idiot supposed, of course, that he had struck a bonanza—one bucket shop man playing against another! It must be a sure thing! So he not only placed the $50 as requested, but played the tip hard himself, and so did all his friends, whom he promptly let into the secret. Needless to say, they were all eventually skinned out of every cent they put in, but the remarkable part of the story is that the same tactics were worked back and forth by both managers on at least a dozen different occasions. Each time it was done they gathered in a lot of new clients and made a big haul. It developed not long afterward that the two bucket shops were run by the same people."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

HE ROUSED JEFFERSON.

Why the Hotel Porter Waked Jefferson From His Sleep.

Leslie's Weekly tells this story about Joseph Jefferson: A number of years ago he played a one night engagement in a small Indiana town, appearing in his favorite part of Rip Van Winkle. In the hotel at which he stopped was an Irishman "recently landed," who acted as porter and general assistant. Judged by the deep and serious interest which he took in the house, he might have been clerk, lessee and proprietor, rolled into one.

At about 6 o'clock in the morning Mr. Jefferson was startled by a violent thumping on his door. When he struggled into consciousness and realized that he had left no "call" order at the office, he was naturally indignant. But his sleep was spoiled for that morning, so he arose, and soon after appeared before the clerk. "See here," he demanded of that individual, "why was I called at this unearthly hour?"

"I don't know, sir," answered the clerk, "I'll ask Mike."

The Irishman was summoned. Said the clerk: "Mike, there was no call for Mr. Jefferson. Why did you disturb him?"

Taking the clerk by the lapel of the coat, the Hiberian led him to one side and said, in a mysterious whisper: "He were shnoring loike a horse, sor, and Oi'd heerd the b'ys say as how he were onct afther shlaping fur twinty years, so Oi sez to mesilf, sez Oi, 'Moike, it's a cooming onto him ag'in, and it's yer juty to git the craythers out o' yer house instantly!'"

Interested Queen Victoria.

Queen Victoria took a good deal of kindly interest in the recent marriage of the niece of the late John Brown. Miss Brown was one of her majesty's many goddaughters and was named Victoria. As a child she often accompanied her uncle to the castle, and the queen gave her hosts of pretty toys. For a wedding gift her majesty sent her a silver teapot inscribed "V. B., From Victoria, R. I., November 8, 1898," as well as presenting her with a handsome wedding dress and a bridal veil with orange blossoms and lucky white heather.

WHEN A FELLER'S STUBBED HIS TOE.

Did ye ever pass a youngster et'd been an stubbed his toe
An was cryin by th' roadside, sorter quietlike an slow,
A-holdin of his dusty foot, all hard an brown an bare,
An tryin to keep from his eyes th' tears that's gatherin there?
Ye hear him sorter sobbin like an snufflin of his nose,
An ye stop an pat his head an sorter try to ease his woes;
Ye treat him sorter kindlike, an th' fust thing that ye know
He's up an off an smilin—clean forgot he stubbed his toe.

'Long th' road of human life ye see a feller trav'lin slow,
An like as not ye'll find he's some poor cuss that's stubbed his toe;
He was makin swimmin headway, but he bumped into a stone,
An his frien's kept hurryin onward, an they let' him here alone.
He ain't sobbin or ain't snifflin, he's too old fer tears an cries,
But he's grievin jes' as earnest, if it only comes in sighs,
An it does a heap of good sometimes to go a little slow
An say a word of comfort to th' man that's stubbed his toe.

Ye're never sure yerself, an thar ain't no earthly way to know
Jes' when it's goin to come yer turn to trip an stub yer toe;
Today ye're smilin, happy, in th' bright sun's light an glow,
An tomorrow ye're a-shiverin, an ye're strugglin through th' snow.
Jes' th' time ye think ye've got th' world th' fastest in yer grip
Is th' very time, ye'll find, et yer th' likeliest to slip,
An it's mighty comfortin to have some feller stop, I know,
An comfort ye an try to help ye when ye've stubbed yer toe.

Queen Victoria's Private Mail.

It is in her private sitting room that Queen Victoria's private letters, which comprise a daily epistle from each one of her children and children-in-law, are always opened and read by the recipient. Each day his portion of the royal mail bag is brought to the sitting room in locked dispatch boxes. It is not generally known that every letter personally read by the queen, whether of a public or private nature, is not only filed, but bound, and some years ago it was comparatively easy for any visitor to the castle to obtain access to these valuable and often private documents. Now, however, these volumes are kept under lock and key.

The facetious man ambled gingerly over the icy pave.

"These are the times that try men's soles," he called to a passing friend. He threw a heavy emphasis on the "soles" and the friend smiled.

At that moment the punster's feet flew from under him and he came down with a resounding thwack.

"I see," said the passing friend, with much gravity, "that the exact seat of the soul is still a matter of doubt."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Foreman Sanders' Error.

James Sanders, foreman of the dry goods department of the Mammoth Racket, was the victim of a pretty good joke the other day. A lady while in the store trading lost a veil, which he carefully laid up until it should be called for. Soon afterward a lady called and said to one of the clerks she had lost her baby. Mr. Sanders, being in the rear of the store and not hearing distinctly, thought she said veil, as he had that in mind, and rushed forward and asked her if it was a white or a black one. When he found out it was a baby she had lost, he retreated in a collapsed condition.—Chanute Tribune.

Pride's Fall.

"Winded, eh?" sneered the automobile as it bowled past the old gray mare which had stopped to get her breath.

But almost simultaneously with the unkind words one of the puffed up tires of the automobile was punctured by a discarded hatpin that lay in the road.

Whereupon the old gray mare smiled and spared enough breath to gasp mockingly, "Winded, eh?"

Which story is told to show that even automobiles may live in glass houses and throw stones.—Brooklyn Life.

He Meant It.

"Jim is an ingenious fellow. He spent half the summer building a cottage on his new lake shore tract. It is a pretty cottage too. He's covered the outside of the ground story with terra firma."

"You mean terra cotta."

"I don't. I mean mud."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUSBAND BLAMES SOCIETY.

Wife Says He is Not Faithful—Both Granted Divorces—The Husband's Story.

Atlanta Journal.

His wife's fondness for society's gay whirl is what Robert G. Taylor claims to be the cause of his marital unhappiness.

Mrs. Annie T. Taylor filed suit for divorce in this county, charging her husband with cruel treatment and with being untrue to her. The case came up for a final trial today. The divorce was granted and both parties were given the right to marry again. Mrs. Taylor's maiden name of Twiggs was restored to her.

The wife was not in court. Her interrogatories had been taken and were read to the jury. Taylor was present, not to fight his wife's suit, but to ask that his own disabilities be removed.

Mrs. Taylor's home is in Augusta. The is a member of a prominent family. In her petition she represented that Taylor had known her for years before their marriage and well knew the atmosphere of love and kindness by which she had ever been surrounded. He was a man whose high social standing and family connection gave her every hope that he did, could and would appreciate her social position. When he sought her hand in marriage there seemed every prospect that the union would be a happy one.

They were married November 29th, 1888. The final separation occurred in December, 1895. Mrs. Taylor represented that her husband did everything a loving and effectionate husband ought not to do.

Taylor is a mill man. He told the jury that he was an industrious man and had hoped after he married to accumulate something. He thought his wife would be willing to give up society and go with him to the country, where he had a mill. Since the suit was filed Taylor has moved to Charlotte, N. C.

Had Driven Mules Before.

Daniel C. Pomeroy, once a prominent New York criminal lawyer, in his early life was a stage driver on the old Butterfield line and gleaned his legal education largely upon the box seat of his coach or while change of horses was being made at the stations. He was associated with others in the defense of one Mrs. McCarthy on her trial at Utica for the murder of a man named Hall of Ogdensburg, who was killed by a bullet from her revolver which was aimed at another man. Judge Doolittle presided at the trial and seemed to believe in the prisoner's guilt. The judge was bitter, and so was Pomeroy. The latter made an objection and insisted upon it rather strenuously.

"Mr. Pomeroy," said the judge, "I am not a horse and can't be driven."

"Well, your honor, I learned in my early experience to drive mules, and I will try to keep up my former reputation."—Philadelphia Call.

Going by the Eye.

Unless one has some other sort of knowledge to contradict it it is natural to accept the evidence of the eye. Therefore the answer which a teacher recently received from her class of small children was not altogether surprising.

"Which is farther away," she asked, "England or the moon?"

"England!" the children answered quickly.

"England?" she questioned. "What makes you think that?"

"'Cause we can see the moon, and we can't see England," answered one of the brightest of the class.—Youth's Companion.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

Linguistic Oddities.

"I came across a colored man who spoke with a German accent the other day," said a prominent stockbroker. "I dropped into a restaurant not far from the city hall for lunch, and the waiter who took my order, although unmistakably a colored man, spoke as though he had just come from some Pennsylvania Dutch settlement up the state. The thing was so pronounced that I spoke to the proprietor about it and found that my suspicions were correct. The man was a full blooded negro, but he had been born and raised in a small town near Reading and had always associated with the whites who spoke Pennsylvania Dutch. Queer, isn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know!" said one of the party whose business takes him through the west. "A short time ago I came across a German who spoke English with a decided Irish brogue. He was an educated young fellow, a graduate of a German university, and he was very anxious to learn English. He drifted out to Chicago and from there to a lumber camp up in Wisconsin. Here, he thought, would be an excellent chance to learn the language. But all the men in the camp were Irishmen. Of course the young German didn't know that, and he fell readily into their mode of speech. At the end of a year he returned to Chicago, very proud of having mastered our tongue, and was greatly surprised to discover that he had a brogue. That was several years ago, but he has never lost it. It clings to him as closely as though he had been born in County Antrim."—Philadelphia Record.

Evidence Lacking.

In 1870 the contractors' firm of Comstock & White was doing business at Fort Wallace. In the course of a quarrel Comstock killed White. White had a brother in New York, a lawyer, who came out to visit the law upon his brother's slayer. Comstock was arrested and brought before Judge Joyce at Hays City. The prisoner walked into the courtroom (Judge Joyce's saloon) with two big six shooters belted to his hips.

"Misther Comstock, ye are charged with willful murther. Are ye guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge.

"Guilty!" was the laconic response.

This was entirely beyond Judge Joyce's calculations. He had no precedent for such a case and no power or inclination to visit out a penalty, and so, with great indignation, he shouted:

"Ye are a fool for tellin it! Did any wan see ye do it?"

"No," was the prisoner's response.

"Thin Oi discharge ye fer want of ividence," declared his honor, and thereupon all the boys moved up to the bar and took "sunthin" with Mr. Comstock.

But imagine the feelings of Mr. White of New York, who had come to avenge his brother's slaying!—Kansas City Journal.

The Whipping Post.

A whipping post for the correction of bad boys has been set up in Evansville, Ind. The judge of the local police court is responsible for the innovation. He was puzzled what to do with boys indifferent to parental control and hesitated to inflict the penalty of a fine, which was really a punishment on the parent. He discovered that an old statute permitting the flogging of lawbreakers had not been repealed, and at once set up the whipping post. Now when a boy is found guilty of misdemeanor his father is sent for and given his choice of paying a fine, seeing his boy go to jail or giving him a sound flogging with a strap in the presence of an officer whose duty it is to see that there is no sham about the punishment. There is seldom need of the mentor's interference, the angry parent wielding the strap to good purpose. The Humane society felt impelled to interfere, but the judge stood upon the law, and there has been a marked decrease in the number of boys brought before the court.—New York Post.

DOES IT PAY TO BUY CHEAP?

A cheap remedy for conghs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

No Cur—No Pay.

That is the way all druggists sel Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic for Chills and Malaria. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating tonics. Price, 50c.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

Taken as a whole, the reports indicate that there will be an increase of about 10 per cent. in this year's crop over that of last year. They show that fully 10 to 20 per cent. more fertilizers have been used, and in some instances it runs as high as 25 per cent. They indicate that as a rule the farmers are in exceptionally good financial condition and that very little cotton remains in the warehouses at this time.

Roses--White and Red.

Inscribed to the Daughters of the Confederacy on Memorial Day.

Oh, gather the sweet, red roses
And roses of snowy white,
And twine, in a wreath immortal,
Those flowers of love and light,
To crown our gallant soldiers
Who in dreamless slumber lie
Mid the perfume and the incense
Of deeds that never die.

For warm as the hearts of crimson
That burn in the sun-kissed leaves
Of the brilliant, blood-red roses,
When the nightingale sadly grieves,
Are the tears that fall at noon-tide,
For the dead and buried braves
They've bequeathed us glorious history,
We can give them—only graves.

So over these graves of emerald
Plant fragrant roses of white
Empearled with the tears of angels
In the blue and stilly night,
As the dews descend from heaven,
And the west wind softly sighs,
While the sentinel stars above them
Keep watch in the azure skies.

How well they sleep in the Southland,
Those warriors of long ago,
While about them clamber the roses—
Blood-red and roses of snow—
So gather the sweet, red roses,
And roses white and fair
And cover our gallant heroes,
With the colors they used to wear.
—Mrs. E. D. Hundley in the Charlotte Observer.

Excelsior Sleeping Couch. As a Sleeping Couch the Excelsior is unrivaled and no Child's Carriage can be perfectly adapted to the various purposes it should serve which cannot be readily converted into a Sleeper. How often do we see children trundled along with heads nodding and pitching from one side to the other of the carriage, or sleeping in a most uncomfortable position? The Excelsior obviates all this. Whenever the child is inclined to sleep the back can be let down in a moment and the child at once placed in a easy sleeping position.
